THAT IS A GOOD QUESTION:

How do I find out about student organizations at Marshall University?

A good start is to either visit our office in room 2W38 in the Memorial Student Center, or call us at 896-6770. While information can be found in the Student Handbook, you can get more specific details by talking to our staff.

I would like to start a new organization -- what do I need to do?

You can pick up the necessary forms in our office. We will also supply you with information such as : how to put together a constitution and a purpose and goals statement, how to select an advisor, how to recruit members, and how to select officers.

Our group was approved last year -- are we still in good standing?

By the last Friday of September, each organization must apply for continued recognition by completing the simple forms available from the Student Activities and Organizations Office (MSC 2W38). Renewal is not automatic. It is a means of guaranteeing that each group is still functioning smoothly and all information such as officers is current. When you have a turnover in officers, report it to our office. When potential new members call our office, we need to know where they can obtain further information.

What is the difference between registered and affiliated organizations?

Registered (Interest groups, Departmental Groups, Religious Groups). Private entities, not viewed as official components of the institution, which are sponsored through academic departments or religious denominations for the primary purpose of mutual interests. Membership in these student groups are open to students, faculty, staff, administration, and spouses.

Affiliation. (Honoraries, Professional Organizations, Greeks). Student organizations that purport to have an educational mission and a legal identity separate from the institution are able to attain affiliation status with the institution. Affiliation with campus organizations off campus is to be clearly indicated, either by title or by organization, or its constitution at the time of registration, or by specific statements in connection with any activities growing out of a later affiliation.

Why should we bother with "registration" or "Affiliation"?

Registered and Affiliated organizations receive free publicity in various University publications, access to room usage on campus, participation in recruitment drives, and opportunities for leadership development as well as many other advantages. For a more complete list contact the SA&O Office.

Can anyone be an officer?

Although membership may not be limited to students, Affiliated organization officers must be students and at least fifty-one percent (51%), including the President, of the officers of a registered organization must be students. Also, because the task of leadership is demanding, those same officers must maintain a minimum overall gradepoint average (GPA) of 2.00 or 3.00 for Graduate students. Individual organizations may choose to impose a higher requirement for the same reason as the minimum requirement.
